Throne speech reveals restrained agenda aimed at slicing $56B deficit

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is fashioning himself Canada's top frugalista with a throne speech meant to impress with style, yet cost little at the cash register.

Aside from some new low-cost accessories — such as loosening of foreign investment rules and more help for single parents — the rest of the wardrobe is a tailoring of previous Conservative priorities.

The agenda "recalibration" the Tories promised when Harper controve-

Salary freeze, nuclear restructuring

- The speech promises a large symbolic freeze on politicians' salaries and departmental operating budgets.
- The government says it will help the nuclear industry beginning with a restructuring of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd (AECL). A source said the Conservatives are poised to earmark $400 million for that project in the budget.

It's aimed at slicing the record $56-billion deficit shut down Parliament in late December consists mainly of a more restrained spending plan that will shape today's federal budget.

To realize the hopes Canadians hold for themselves and their families, the economy must remain our government's single most urgent priority," read Gov. Gen. Michaëlle Jean, making her way through the hour-long, 6,000-word speech.

Familiar Harper themes of arctic sovereignty, national security, tougher sentencing for criminals, and Senate reform once again made up a substantial chunk of the speech.

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff called the recalibration a "regurgitation."

Immediately after the throne speech, Ignatieff proposed a motion to establish a special Commons committee to look at whether the prime minister's power to prorogue Parliament should be limited.

Despite the rhetoric, an electoral stalemate between the Conservatives and Liberals all but guarantees neither of the main parties will try to trigger an election. A survey conducted Feb. 18-28 by The Canadian Press Harris Decima suggests the two main parties are deadlocked at 31 per cent each.

Paralympic torch relay begins 10-day trip to B.C.

PARALYMPIC 2010 Games

RELAY Over the last few weeks, the 2010 Winter Olympic Games brought this country together in ways that few people could have imagined.

"But we're only at the halfway point," said VANOC CEO John Furlong, at a ceremony to kick off the Paralympic torch relay on Parliament Hill yesterday.

The 10-day relay takes the flame east into Quebec before making stops in Toronto and then onto British Columbia for the opening ceremonies in Vancouver on March 12.

The motto for the relay is, "Spark becomes Flame."

That flame, said Prime Minister Stephen Harper yesterday, should make all Canadians very proud. It is that same flame that brought the country together and inspired athletes to bring in a national record medal haul and set a new standard for gold medals at a Winter Games by any country, he said.

"In Canada, sports mat-

Comedian Rick Mercer runs with the Paralympic torch yesterday during the Vancouver 2010 Paralympic torch relay launch ceremony on Parliament Hill.

ter, the Olympic Games matter, the Paralympic Games matter, and you are making our country proud," Harper said. "Make us proud all over again." Unlike the Olympic flame, the Paralympic flame has no ancestral home, said International Paralympic Committee president Sir Phillip Craven.

"It's generated by Paralympians, games officials, volunteers, staff and spectators in which country the games are taking place," he said.

Vacation expo set to show off splashy ideas

LANSDOWNE PARK With the rebound of the economy, people who may have kept their vacations close to home last year are splashing out in 2010.

Held at Lansdowne Park, this weekend's Ottawa Travel and Vacation Show will give them ideas on how to do it. "The time to plan is right now," said spokeswoman Halina Player.

According to Player, anything goes in 2010, especially for Ottawa residents, who she said are a "sophisticated, well-informed and well-travelled" population.

Many people don't just want to sit on a beach, said Player. Culinary and adventure tourism is popular among Ottawa residents. While the show features over 150 exhibitors representing every continent, the show will also include destinations close to home.

Arts group seeks $175K

Money would help pay down $1.6M construction costs

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

One of Ottawa's leading theatre, cultural and arts groups is looking for a $175,000 grant from the city to help pay some bills.

Today, the city's community and protective services committee will consider a request for financial assistance from the Great Canadian Theatre Company to help make payments on a $1.6 million loan it took out when building the Irving Greenberg Theatre Centre.

The city has already committed $1.3 million to cover construction cost. When that money was approved by city council, it represented 25 per cent of the cost of the project. By the time the building finally opened in 2007, the city's contribution was only 11 per cent.

Of all the large arts centres in Ottawa, the GCTC received the least amount of funding from the city, said Kitchissippi Ward Coun. Christine Leadman.

While the company is not entitled to more money, the city has a policy of contributing 25 per cent of the construction cost for large community projects. Even with the additional funding, the city's share is only 12.6 per cent.

Leadman said $175,000 is not beyond what others have asked for.

By the end of June, the GCTC will have paid $294,652 in interest and principal payments. While they continue to fundraise to repay their debt, the company cannot pay it off using operating revenue.

"We're not asking taxpayers to fund the entire amount," said Peter Doody, chairman of the GCTC board of directors.

Burn victim tried suicide, say police

GATINEAU A woman found outside Gatineau Park Tuesday evening with second- and third-degree burns covering her upper body and face likely attempted suicide, Gatineau police said yesterday afternoon.

A dozen to 20 police officers combed an area of Gatineau Park yesterday after a woman was found with serious burns to over half of her body at around 5 p.m. behind the Gabrielle-Roy campus of the CEGEP d'Outaouais. Gatineau Police Const. Isabelle Poirier said the white, English-speaking woman is believed to be in her 20s. No other people were found, but at 1:30 p.m., police found some clothes, a fuel container, rags and human hair about 200 metres from the CEGEP property, said Poirier.

PM's unicorn? A pay freeze

The Harper government is getting praise for its proposal to freeze the salaries of federal politicians.

But the praise-givers realize it won't make a discernible dent in the $56-billion deficit.

The Canadian Taxpayers Federation said the prospect of politicians tightening their belts is akin to "a unicorn sighting."

"It's something we called for and we're glad to see them actually doing it," said the federation's Kevin Gaudet.

The government announced in yesterday's throne speech it will introduce legislation to freeze the salaries of the prime minister, cabinet ministers, MPs and senators.

It will also freeze the overall budget for ministerial offices and departmental operating budgets.

Gaudet said it's an important symbolic gesture.

"This is eye-dropper, thimbleful approach ... But it's necessary to give them the moral authority to do the stuff they're going to need to do."

Smith said an emergency beacon on the ship would have immediately alerted Brazilian officials to a problem when the Concordia heeled, about 500 kilometres offshore.

Smith said the Brazilians should have spread the message to other ships.

Cheating – stupid is as stupid does

Relating

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/collins

his just in: Cheating is dumb. Dr. Satoshi Kanazawa, an evolutionary psychologist of the London School of Economics and Political Science, has published a study suggesting that men with higher IQs are less likely to cheat on their partners. ("Or," posited Gawker's Richard Lawson, "are they just better at not getting caught?")

The publication of the paper in Social Psychology Quarterly has if nothing else provided yet another opportunity for less cerebral media to publish more pictures of Tiger Woods. (As well as glib, scientifically illiterate columns like this one, I suppose.)

Kanazawa's theory is that primitive man was hard-wired for promiscuity, and monogamy is a more recent invention, an "evolutionary novel" behaviour that requires a little more head-horsepower to achieve.

He also found liberals and atheists tended to have higher IQs than conservatives and believers, again reaching for the explanation of evolutionary novelty. Is it any wonder religious conservatives are the least likely to believe in evolution? What's in it for them?

Smart women, meanwhile, were found no less apt to get some on the side than those with lower IQs. Evolution is tricky stuff, eh?

With all due respect to the good doctor, there may be a bit of confusion of cause and effect going on here. Maybe cheating makes you stupid. The likes of Eliot Spitzer and Bill Clinton, initially considered pretty sharp, ended up looking distinctly dumb once their reckless horn-dogger was exposed.

And maybe we're reading too much into Kanazawa's findings that "more intelligent men are more likely to value monogamy and sexual exclusivity than less intelligent men," which is hardly a predictor of behaviour. Most cheaters will acknowledge that it's wrong, but they do it anyway.

All of which maybe goes to show that science, while a nifty pursuit for eggheads whose presumed penchant for monogamy leaves them with time on their hands, is a crude tool for mapping the complexities of the relationship you actually live in.

Where does this leave us? Why are you asking me? If you're dumb enough to sleep around, and experience teaches that many of us are, I'd suggest you'll need a smarter plan than blaming either your modest IQ or millions of years of evolution when you get caught.

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

Women with sticks deserve same recognition

Both our hockey teams struck Olympic gold in Vancouver. The next day, hockey fever raged on for the NHL. But whether the women after the podium was packed away? Is there support for women's hockey beyond the Games?

I polled a few hockey-obssessed friends: The answer was no. For one, there's no professional league; even if there were, the game lacks speed and finesse, one said. Another said women don't excite the way pugilistic NHLers do. Wait, where did that fuzzy feeling go? I thought we were proud of our golden girls.

Female hockey players have always been a bit subversive. The sport began with men, and as a result, fans have come to see the boys' version as the way it ought to be played. Now, women are adopting it, but with a style that's all their own.

There are some examples of women in men's hockey: Hayley Wickenheiser in European leagues; Manon Rheaume in NHL exhibition games.

It's a difficult pill to swallow, acknowledging that some spectators will never be inspired by women for their sheer athleticism; that she will always be good ... for a girl.

Add to that the talk that women's hockey ought to be removed from the Olympics. Supporters cried foul, maintaining that it will just take time to establish the sport and develop a deep talent pool. I hope that's the case. That would be golden.

Canice Leung is a former editor of Ryerson University feminist magazine McClung's, copy editor at Metro, ardent feminist and loudmouth.

Uganda Death toll rises after mudslides

People search for survivors yesterday after the landslide in Uganda. Rivers of mud swamped houses, stores and at least one school after torrential rains Tuesday, killing at least 92 people with some 250 still missing, officials say.

Widening scandal shocks Germany

It happened for years, again and again. Every morning before class, the boys had to undress and Father Ludger Stueper sprayed them with cold water from the hose, front and back.

The boys also had to lie down on Stueper's couch where the Roman Catholic priest would take their temperature — rectally for seven minutes. Then there were the photos taken of the boys, forced to pose naked.

A few of the at least 150 victims are now willing to speak out in an ever-widening scandal involving allegations of priests sexually abusing their pupils at several Catholic high schools across Germany.

Papal reaction

- Neither Pope Benedict XVI nor the Vatican has made specific remarks about the abuse scandal in Germany, a Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Ciro Benedettini, said, but he added that previous statements on other such scandals — including most recently about Ireland — are certainly valid for Germany.

The scandal has spiralled since seven alumni of the prestigious Catholic Canisius Kolleg in Berlin first came forward with allegations of abuse in January, shocking the homeland of Pope Benedict XVI.

While the focus of the sex abuse scandal in the Catholic church centred on the U.S. for several years, abuse scandals have in recent years erupted in other countries as well, including Canada, Ireland, the Philippines, Poland, Mexico, Italy and elsewhere.

More than one month after the first victims came forward in Berlin, new revelations of child abuse by Catholic priests are surfacing on an almost daily basis.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg," the Rev. Klaus Mertes, the director of Canisius Kolleg said last month.

ATC let child radio plane instructions

NEW YORK An air traffic controller at New York's Kennedy Airport was suspended yesterday for allowing his young son to radio instructions to several pilots. The few quick exchanges between the elementary-school-aged child and jets waiting to take off from JFK, one of America's busiest airports, appeared to delight pilots at the time. But the Federal Aviation Administration suspended the controller and a supervisor after recordings of the calls were posted on the Internet, then reported on by a Boston TV station.

Road accidents deadly for youth

STATISTICS Road accidents are the leading cause of death for world youth from ages five to 29, and nearly half of the 1.2 million traffic fatalities each year are pedestrians, cyclists and motorcyclists, the World Health Organization said. The study finds that more than 90 per cent of the fatalities occur in developing nations, and in some of the poorer nations as many as four-fifths of those killed in road traffic are "vulnerable road users," or those not in cars.

Canadian bankruptcies up 25 per cent in 2009

The number of Canadians who filed for bankruptcy was up by more than a quarter last year, but both business and personal bankruptcies fell for the third straight month in December.

Overall, bankruptcies were up by 25.9 per cent, and consumer bankruptcies rose by 28.4 per cent from the last month of 2008, when Canada and most other developed countries were in the midst of a major global recession.

December also showed improvements from the preceding months of 2009, although the Office of the Superintendent of Bank-

Firms fare well

• Canadian firms appeared to have fared remarkably well during the downturn. Business bankruptcies fell 7.7 per cent in December and for 2009 as a whole, they were down 12.1 per cent.

Bankruptcies cautioned that filings have historically tended to decrease in the latter part of most years.

Consumer bankruptcies dropped 8.7 per cent in December, following a 3.8 per cent decline in November.

Proposals, an alternative to bankruptcy that allows for a renegotiation of payments, also fell by 16.6 per cent in December, according to statistics compiled by the federal superintendent of bankruptcy.

"The continuation of the downward trend in consumer bankruptcy filings appears to be an increasingly positive sign that Canadian households are getting a better grasp on their finances," said Royal Bank economist David Onyett-Jeffries.

Onyett-Jeffries explained that recent changes to the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act encourages consumers to restructure debt as an alternative to declaring bankruptcy.

Expect more recalls: Analysts

AUTO Nissan has joined the growing list of automakers recalling their vehicles, with a recall of more than 6,000 trucks and minivans in Canada to fix problems with brake pedals and fuel gauges.

Lawsuit

• Relatives of a family killed in a high-speed crash have sued Toyota for product liability and negligence, according to a lawsuit filed Tuesday.

Industry analysts say recalls will become more commonplace as new vehicles incorporate more complex technology.

Analyst Dennis DesRosiers says automakers have been making their vehicles increasingly sophisticated in response to new regulations for safety, emissions and fuel efficiency.

He predicts this will lead to more and bigger recalls over the next 10 years.

Vehicle companies are also stepping up their safety initiatives in response to the regulatory pressure on Toyota due to a massive global recall of its products.

Sens stand pat at deadline

Earlier moves already set team up for playoff run: Murray

"Getting Matt Cullen, a very versatile forward and a guy who can play in our top six ... I think now we're 14 or 15 forwards deep, so if we are in the playoffs and make a run, I think we're fairly well protected in that area," Murray said yesterday.

And (Tuesday), being able to obtain Andy Sutton, a big guy and defensive-type defenceman, provides some depth for us in that area, but more than that — I think he'll be a real element on our hockey team. He's big and strong, tougher around the net."

In possession of one of the NHL's worst power plays, the Senators were believed to be interested in possibly obtaining some help on the blue-line for those situations.

Murray admitted he spoke with several other teams throughout the day but didn't find anything to his liking.

The lack of deals yesterday could also be good news to the Senators when it comes to their ability to retain one of their most-prized assets in defenceman Anton Volchenkov. He's scheduled to become an unrestricted free agent after the season.

Earlier this week, Murray admitted talks between the team and the Russian blue-liner's agent, Jay Grossman, on a contract extension weren't looking good.

But rather than entertain offers to move the 28-year-old in order to avoid the risk of losing him for nothing July 1, Murray is hoping talks will continue.

Volchenkov is earning $3.2 million US in the final year of his deal and has a salary cap hit of $2.5 million.

"I had a couple of calls about Anton and I have talked to his agent a couple of times today," Murray said. "We didn't get anything done, but we are talking and that's a good thing. I told him in my last call that I was not going to trade him."

"I've said all along and I've said to our staff that what I want to do here, by adding Matt Cullen and Andy Sutton and by acquiring enough depth I think, is give our team the best chance come the latter part of the year and then in the playoffs."

Big names stay put as GMs do deals

NHL Toronto Maple Leafs general manager Brian Burke stepped to the podium not long after the NHL's annual trade deadline had passed, and like many of his colleagues around the league he had plenty to say but nothing to really brag about.

Some teams were more active than others, like the Washington Capitals, which added veteran depth and clubs like the Leafs and Carolina Hurricanes, which shed it. But it was difficult to find a headline-grabbing name in the mass of movement like there was two years ago, when the deadline was filled with big names such as Marian Hossa and Brian Campbell.

"I would say it was decidedly quiet," Burke said when it was all done yesterday. "There's not big-name players."

"Lots of activity, but it's a low-hum, you know? No big thunder claps."

Washington acquired defenceman Joe Corvo from Carolina, with one report suggesting he would share the blue-line with Mike Green on the power play. The Capitals also picked up forward Scott Walker from the Hurricanes, defenceman Milan Jurcina from Columbus and forward Eric Belanger from Minnesota.

TSN's unofficial tally pegged the total number of trades yesterday at 30, which would be a record.

Consider composite for renovating

For homeowners, granite is a favourite for countertops, flooring, backsplash and fireplace hearths.

However, there is a difference between natural granite — made from an actual slab of natural stone — and composite granite materials. Compos-ites include a combination of natural and manmade material and that gives them an edge over natural stone when it comes to durability, performance and hygiene.

Popular on the market today are kitchen sinks made of "granite composite" material. Canada's leading brand is Silgranit, made by German sink manufacturer Blanco.

Made of 80 per cent natural granite, Silgranit also has a patented formulation of acrylic and ceramic microbeads that make it non-porous, scratch-proof and stain resistant. The sinks come in seven natural colours and the company makes matching coloured faucets for easy coordination.

"Silgranit is a patented material that is unique in the marketplace and so durable, it can last the lifetime of a person's home without chipping or scratching," says Alexandra Marshall, marketing director with Blanco. "Both our formulation and manufacturing process is

"It's important to know that a composite material, being manmade, will not be the same from one manufacturer to another," adds Ms. Marshall. "With Silgranit, for example, you can put a hot pot straight from the stove into the sink and it will resist the heat. Gowns get dramatic

for Metro Canada

This year promises to be a fun one for the wedding dress. It's playing with colourful accents, lacy layers, changing lengths — and it's doing it on a budget.

"Black accents are not goth anymore," says Lori Pannia, editor in chief at the TheRingBearer.ca. "This theme was all over the runway; whether it be a sash in the hair, a belt around the waist or even simple details on the dress, all designers used some sort of drama with black accents."

Red is also getting in on the fun. "Look for bright red dresses embellished with large satin sashes and bows, or red dresses with black piping and details," says Lisa Lewis, co-founder she could only wear once."

Aside from flaunting legs, gowns are also revealing more skin on backs. "Backs were open and low cut," says Pannia. "The looks are sexy but designed to be classy. Keep an eye out for key-hole cutouts and jewels adorning the back."

Finally, budgets are being considered. While her collection offers saving in the form of two dresses in one, Wechsler has also come up with a more affordable line. "With the economy being what it is, another important consideration for me with this collection was that I wanted to be able to offer a couture gown for under $2,000."

Black — as seen here in the Arabella gown, left, and the Rhapsody gown by Jenny Packham — was all over the runway at the spring and summer 2010 bridal fashion shows.

Can you afford it?

The average wedding costs almost $20,000 (according to a 2009 Weddingbells survey), but can you afford it?

"After a recession, many couples are thinking twice about spending money on a chocolate fountain and matching tablecloths," said Liz Lunney, senior vice-president, Fiduciary Trust Company of Canada. Here are some ways to save money:

- Party after the wedding. Go to a vacation destination for a private ceremony with close family and friends. When you return, have a cocktail and hors d'oeuvres party to celebrate.

- The early bird saves money. Watch for sales to save on decorations and out-of-season items. A wedding dress on clearance can save you hundreds of dollars.

- Stick to a VIP list. Only invite friends and family who are closest to you. This can open up the opportunity to have the reception in a cheaper venue, such as someone's backyard or at a restaurant.

- Get creative. For the personal touch, create your own invitations — it's a great way to save money too. Keep décor simple and order flowers in advance from a grocery store.

- Something old, something borrowed. Do you really need a brand new cake knife or vases for the flowers? Instead, borrow items from family or friends, or rent what you need.

Brides eye lash extensions

JANINE FALCON
for Metro Canada

For some brides-to-be, a long, lush, dark fringe of lashes means dispensing with mascara on their wedding day and not having to wear eye makeup at all while enjoying their honeymoon. All it takes to get them is a couple of hours and between $75 and $300.

Eye lash extensions are becoming more and more popular for women with natural lashes that are short and fine.

"They give you the look of naturally defined eyes without the use of mascara," says Olena Kovalchuk, makeup artist and eyelash extension technician at Kirsch Cosmetic Studio in Toronto. "Extensions make lashes look longer and a little thicker."

The process involves having synthetic clusters or singles glued onto clean, natural lashes to deliver a longer, thicker, more dramatic effect. More common are single-lash extensions, in which one synthetic lash is glued onto a single natural lash (without touching the lid); the finish tends to be more realistic.

Proper care is important for extension longevity, and is usually outlined for each client during the appointment. Instructions include not touching the lashes once they're applied because the natural oils in skin reduce the effectiveness of the adhesive. Non-oily makeup remover is also best.

How long extensions last also seems to depend on the supplies each technician uses. According to Kovalchuk, the type of extensions and glue she uses (Misencils) can last up to nine months. To maintain lush results, however, the key is monthly fill-in appointments to replace lashes that fall off during the natural lash-shedding cycle.

Jennifer Ballance, who provides lash extension services at Buff Nail Lounge in downtown Toronto, uses materials supplied by a company called XtremeLash-Canada, and predicts a full two months of good-condition wear with a refill about halfway through.

Extensions eventually fall off by themselves, but the look can get scraggly as more lashes disengage. "See a professional who can remove them without damaging the natural lash," Ballance suggests.

Cost can depend on the number of extensions you have. At Buff, a half-set of about 30 synthetics per eye is $75, and a full set of about 70 per eye is $150. At Kirsch, however, the price is $300 — rather than limit the number of extensions she uses, Kovalchuk applies as many as necessary for the fullest effect (it varies according to how many lashes the client has naturally), and sends the client home with a protective lash sealant and oil-free makeup remover.

Extension alternatives

For women with very sparse lashes, extensions may not be a solution because they can't add much fullness. You can add length to what is already there, but you can't attach synthetic lashes where natural lashes don't exist, Kovalchuk explains.

A temporary strip of falsies is better for achieving a significant overall volume boost. Shu Uemura's Farfallina lashes ($36, Holt Renfrew) offer a glamorous flourish. MAC LASH #31 ($15.50, maccosmetics.com) or Revlon's Fantasy Lengths #9950 ($7.99, at Wal-Mart and Zellers) offer more realistic results.

Eye lash extensions are becoming more popular with brides.

Makeup artist Sylvie Mazerolle (sylviemazerolle.ca) prefers to use flirty lash clusters for a soft, feathery look. "I'm the naturalist when it comes to bridal," she says. "Bridal makeup should enhance your natural beauty — you should look like a princess, not a drama queen."

For women who would rather stick with mascara, L'Oréal Paris Double Extend Beauty Tubes ($14.95 at drugstores) has a primer on one end and colour on the other for a dramatic increase in length. Fragile lashes may have a hero in Cargo LashActivator ($35 at Murale and Sephora), a mascara-like treatment that can be used in the months before the big day. It contains a blend of nourishing marine and botanical extracts to boost growth by improving micro-circulation of nutrients and reducing lash loss.

Show an upbeat event

TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

Most weddings are so expensive, it's nice to get something gratis to celebrate your big day.

Offering free admission, the Ottawa Wedding Show, which comes to Lansdowne Park this Saturday and Sunday, offers everything a couple needs for their wedding and honeymoon in one convenient location, organizers said.

"You can search the city for unique ideas for your perfect wedding day or simply go to the Ottawa Wedding Show," said show manager Yolande Adams.

"I think the bridal houses (at the show) are some of the best in eastern Ontario," Adams said. And as an added bonus, "it's always easiest to deal with someone in the area."

Adams said she expects the show, to be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Civic Centre, to be the largest ever. Last year, more than 10,000 people, including 4,000 brides, visited the spring and fall shows, she said.

It's always an upbeat event, Adams said.

"People are getting married, and they're excited," she said.

No matter how the economy is, the wedding industry holds stable, Adams said.

"People are still getting married and spending money on their special day. Some of them might cut back on the number of guests coming, but they're still going to buy a wedding dress and a get a photographer to capture those memories."

Brides, grooms and their parents will be able to get ideas for reception facilities, flowers, cakes, music, favours, gift registry, decorating ideas, invitations, catering, music, photography, video, limousines and honeymoon destinations.

Those who have been planning their weddings for a while and attended the show last fall will find new ideas this time around.

There are new exhibitors every year, Adams said. "We're always adding new bridal houses, new florists, new planners."

On both days, fashion shows, featuring gowns and formal wear from All That Glitters Bridal, Syd Silver and Moore's, will be held at 12:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Wedding planner seminars, with advice on staying organized and keeping to a budget, led by Liz Bourguignon of Bridal Solutions Wedding Planning, are held at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

But one of the main features that draw brides every year is the gown sale, which includes wedding gowns and bridesmaids' dresses at big discounts.

The gown sale has become one of the signature elements of our event, said Adams. "Future brides arrive early to get a shot at the best deals."

Other freebies for brides-to-be include free magazines and wedding planners, chances to win prizes, and free passes for the Ottawa Travel and Vacation Show, held the same weekend in the Aberdeen Pavilion.

If you're recently engaged and need more time to let it sink in, mark the company's fall show, held Sept. 11 and 12, on your calendar.

Brides and grooms will be able to get ideas for flowers, cakes, decorating, invitations and more at the Ottawa Wedding Show.

Plan to save, experts say

LEYLA EMORY
for Metro Canada

Looking for the best way to get the most bang for your buck out of your wedding? Make planning it part of the fun.

"It should be more than one fabulous day," says Lisa Lewis, co-founder of Live It Up Events. "The planning process can be pretty amazing as well."

But before you even set a date, examine your budget, says Lewis. "The earlier you start, the longer you have to save and spread out your payments."

She suggests saving for at least a year and a half to two years for those trying to keep costs down. "Once you have your wedding budget, calculate how much you could reasonably save on a month-to-month basis. Then push the big day back far enough so that you can give yourself enough time to pay for it."

Now hit the fair.

With Christmas and new year's being the biggest time for engagements, it's no coincidence that wedding shows start popping up in January.

"I believe in entertainment," says Mark Kovacs, president of Canada's Wedding Expo Inc. "You pay $15 at the door to walk in, (and) yes, you will find vendors that will provide a product or service for your wedding — but you need to be entertained while you're there."

Fashion shows, live musicians, food sampling and gift bags are all part of the fun. "It's like Disneyland," he says. "You go from one theme park to another."

But in all the excitement, don't forget to plan the wedding. "The shows are phenomenal for ideas and information," says

Once you're engaged, experts suggest setting a wedding budget.

Lewis, "but I do suggest hiring a planner, a competent, certified planner — someone who will get to know you and your partner, who can take the stress from you, look after you, bring you ideas and guide you in the right direction."

With more than 300 vendors at his wedding show, Kovacs agrees. "Walking into a wedding show with a planner doubles one's effort in finding what they need."

This includes savings. "Everybody thinks that they're going to save money by not hiring a planner," says Lewis, "but in fact, your planner can actually save you a lot of money."

She stresses the importance of not making rash decisions. "Recognize that what worked for your friend, cousin, sister, etcetera may not necessarily work for you."

A planner can offer alternatives to the norm. "Your wedding doesn't always have to follow the classic format," she says. "You can create something wonderful without diving deeply into debt."

• Centrepieces: McNally's favourite DIY centrepiece look involves placing pillar candles of varying heights on a mirror, with gemstones and flower petals scattered around them. Another idea: Fill up glass vases with rocks, shells and ocean glass.

• Favours: "Try to do a favour that somehow is connected to you or important to you," suggests Bourguignon. She recalls a Chinese wedding where the couple put personalized messages inside fortune cookies. For green-themed weddings, consider home-grown potted plants.

• Music: In lieu of a DJ, couples can use their own MP3 player and hook it up to a rented or borrowed speaker system, say McNally.

• Leave it to the pros: Unless you're a florist, Bourguignon advises against making your own bouquets. Both experts agree that photography is another area where you should hire a professional.

Experts weigh in on what to expect on the red carpet

JORDANA DIVON

Awards? What awards? For many, Oscar night is the world's most elaborate fashion show, a chance for the sartorially minded to revel in the beauty (and occasional beastliness) of Hollywood glamour.

Just in case you can't wait until the weekend, Metro has assembled an expert panel to drop a few hints about what to expect on this year's Academy Awards runway.

The Ladies

Los Angeles-based Ali Rahimi is an awards show pro, having dressed stars like Amy Adams, Anjelica Huston and Jane Lynch for their respective romps down the red carpet. And although he won't tell us who, don't be surprised to see one of his gowns floating into The Kodak Theatre on Sunday.

"In the past few years the trend has been discovering new designers — not just sticking with the same old guard — and feeling comfortable enough to take a chance and wear colour or fabrics that are a little more out there.

There's always going to be black, but I think we're also going to see a lot more fabrics Designer Dimitri Chris thinks men at this year's Oscars will opt for less conventional tuxes in a navy or dark grey colour (see actor Don Cheadle, right) and/or a patterned bowtie (see actor Ashton Kutcher, left).

like silk taffeta, which is very malleable to drape different designs in, silk duchess, crepe, and we're seeing a lot of wonderfully complicated, intricate knits as well."

The Gents

Menswear designer Dimitri Chris has been stitching up his niche on the Montreal fashion scene for the past decade, and is the veteran of not one, but two prêt-à-porter collections during la belle ville's Fashion Week. His use of shape and creative combinations has singled him out as one to watch.

"If a guy doesn't wear a traditional black tuxedo and tie he will automatically stand out and not necessarily in the right way. So to make a good statement,

I think the men should opt for a real knotted bowtie, preferably in a pattern rather than solid black. They can also try a less conventional tuxedo with a lightweight velvet dinner jacket or a full-on silk tux in a navy or dark gray instead of the classic black. A pocket square is a must."

The Shoes

Stuart Weitzman's 'million dollar shoes' have been an Oscars staple since 2002, and his work can be seen supporting many of the world's most famous arches. Out of respect for the economy, Weitzman says he won't be debuting a six-figure creation this year, but reassures us there will still be plenty of glamorous footwork.

"Lots and lots of platforms — the higher the better, as well as some unique feather detail designs, crystals, of course, and color palette of nudes and metallics. Stars are always ahead of the curve when it comes to embracing the latest in cutting-edge fashion, so expect the unexpected, especially from Maggie Gyllenhaal and Penelope Cruz."

Derülo sings heart out

Jason Derülo

Album: Jason Derülo

Label: Warner

Rating:

AFTER YEARS OF writing for other artists, latest R&B sensation Jason Derülo finally has his own success with hits Whatcha Say and In My Head. Creating a full-length on their backs, this nine-track eponymous effort ranges from simplistic dance anthems to more of the same. Completely vacuous, Derülo solely bleats about love in various states (falling in to it, emotional hangovers and so on) and seems more concerned with finding vocal hooks than crafting anything of merit. Richly upbeat and overflowing with synthesized effects, Jason Derülo is danceable and quirky but it's also far from enduring or in danger of redefining pop music. Instead, it does as planned: makes a quick cash grab with rudimentary, disposable aural Pabulum.

Joanna Newsom

Album: Have One On Me

Label: Drag City

Rating:

YOU HAVE TO BE nuts to release a two-hour, three-album record filled with spare harp-filled sounds, so it's no surprise that Joanna Newsom has done exactly that. The eclectic singer-songwriter lays down 18 delicate, almost musical-like tracks on her third effort. This album is her most direct and lyrically realized, and while it's difficult to wrap your head around at first, these oddly infectious tunes are growers. Her one problem is the same issue anyone releasing a double disc or more faces — cutting a few of the more forgetful tunes would have made this a five star listen.

for something sweet and creamy, but it lacked a fresh strawberry taste.

Pirogues ($9), a starter at The Diner, were satisfying topped with sautéed onions and crispy bacon pieces. Although by appearances the pirogues looked crispy, they tasted less fried than boiled.

You can't go to a diner without ordering the Classic Hamburger ($10). It was grilled nicely and the plate was fry-happy. Another favourite was the Baked Mac and Cheese ($13) that was tangy and creamy. One person in our party is a Beef Dip ($14) connoisseur and was not disappointed with the beef served on a herbed focaccia bun with flavourful jus on the side. The Diner also offers four versions of Poutine ($4), and the four-cheese version was irresistible and poised to comfort you with calories.

The dessert options are displayed in a glass case, and the layered Chocolate Pudding Cake ($6) was the popular choice for our table. Although the under

The Second World War was the first modern conflict in which all sides made full use of propaganda, bringing their messages to the masses via the relatively new channels of radio and film as well as such tried-and-true vehicles as posters and rallies. IT'S HARDLY A HOSTILE ENVIRONMENT FOR 'COMING OUT'

Harry Potter star Daniel Radcliffe takes rumours about his sexuality in stride, he tells MTV News.

"My favourite thing I saw was a guy on the Internet that said, 'Of course he's gay. He's got a gay face,' which I thought was kind of an odd thing to say anyway," says Radcliffe.

"Like they've sat at home and have got pictures of me next to other famous gay (people) — Elton John, I don't know — just com-

The 20-year-old star insists if he were gay, he'd say so, despite being famous. "I don't think my position would have stopped me if I was gay," Radcliffe says.

BUT CAN YOU IMAGINE WHAT HE'D DO WITH IT IF IT WASN'T?

If there was anyone who could fall into the "too racy for the Oscars" category when it came to writing a skit, Sacha Baron Cohen sits at the top of the list, popeater.com reports.

So it's no surprise that the man behind raunchy-yet-hysterical alter egos like Borat and Bruno had his skit vetoed from this weekend's Oscars telecast.

Why? Because it apparently contained some jokes directed at Avatar director James Cameron, and the show's producers didn't want to insult the man behind the biggest movie ever.
